

As practice, use these arbitrary isocline diagrams to draw trajectories in x-y state space. We don't know anything about the equations, but we can still learn about stability without any biological intuition about the 'system'.

